Pinchot Out Marshals Enemies By Taking Square Deal Name

Harrisburg, Aug. 12 (AP)—The name of Gifford Pinchot will appear on the ballots in November as the candidate for governor of the Square Deal party if the supreme court rules that he is not the duly nominated candidate of the Republican party.

By a sweeping stroke of political strategy, Pinchot today assured that the Square Deal party nomination in every congressional, state senatorial and state legislative district would be in friendly hands.

In the words of one of his workers, Pinchot yesterday morning gave his opponents something to steal by pre-empting the name of the Fair Play party. Then at 5 p. m. the name of the Square Deal party was pre-empted and sealed orders were opened by Pinchot's party workers, instructing them to be in Harrisburg when the courthouse opened this morning to pre-empt the name of the Square Deal party for their districts.

Burning Rugs Set Fire To Balcony

Volunteers Extinguish Blaze Before Firemen Arrive At House On York Street.

When several rugs hanging on the wooden railing of a balcony at the home of Maurice Warren, York street, caught fire, Monday afternoon, the Gettysburg fire company was summoned, but volunteers had the blaze extinguished so that the company's services were not needed.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Children of Mr. Warren, playing in the yard, discovered the fire, and notified a housekeeper.

The flames had communicated with the railing, and volunteers, knocked down the burning timbers and threw the blazing rugs into the yard where they were extinguished.

MERCURY GOES TO 51 HERE

Frost Reported During Night At Franklin; Snow In New York.

Gettysburg, after suffering for three weeks in abnormally hot weather, today almost shivered in the coolest August weather for years, the mercury with lightning rapidly going from one extreme to another.

The minimum temperature during the night was 51 degrees here, according to Dr. Henry Stewart, Baltimore street, while it was reported to be in the forties in the mountains in the vicinity of Caledonia. The maximum today at 2 o'clock was 80, two degrees lower than the maximum on Monday.

Comparing today's temperature with the average recordings for August during the past 37 years, shows that minimum temperature is 12 degrees below the average minimum, and the maximum four degrees below the average maximum. Last week the mercury was hovering between the 80 and 90 degrees mark most of the week at night.

Franklin, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP)—Frost was reported in Venango county early today as the temperature fell to a new low record for August 12 at 37 degrees.

Takes Dive

(By Associated Press)
The weather almost all over the country took a long, cool dive, in some places almost to the freezing point.

In temperatures reported to the Associated Press from all sections of the country, there were a number of 30's and most were 50's and 60's. The highest was 85 at Miami. Frost was reported in New England and Pennsylvania and in many places new records for the date were established.

The drop was precipitated in most places from the extreme heat of the past several weeks, in some instances amounting to a degree an hour.

In some sections there was crop damage by the sudden cold, but this is less than it would have been if the preceding heat and drought had not done all the damage there was to do.

UNIFY PHONE SYSTEMS ON NOVEMBER 1

Local Telephone Head Confers With Men Who Will Put Merger Thru.

$3,000 USED TO REMODEL BOARD

Unification of the Cumberland Valley and Bell telephone systems in Adams county will become effective November 1, Ralph Van Trine, vice president of the former company, said at a conference of his company's executives and foremen at Chambersburg, Monday.

The Cumberland Valley, which will absorb the Bell system in Gettysburg and Adams county, expects to acquire the latter on or about October 1, Mr. Van Trine said.

Prepare for Event
During the month of October, an exchange of properties by the Cumberland Valley and the Bell systems will take place, and everything placed in readiness for the formal unification of the telephone systems on November 1.

Acquisition of certain Bell properties by the Cumberland Valley and certain Cumberland Valley assets by the Bell system already has been approved by the state public service commission and the Interstate commerce commission at Washington.

The Cumberland Valley is already making preparations for the cut-over. A new office in Biglerville has been installed in the old bank building behind Thomas Brothers' store to replace the present Cumberland Valley and Bell offices there.

Refit Exchange Here

About $3,000 has been spent in reconditioning and enlarging the switchboard at the local Cumberland Valley exchange which will handle all local calls after the companies are merged. The local Bell office will be maintained after November 1 to handle all long distance work in and out of Gettysburg.

All local employees of both companies will be continued in service until the unification, Mr. Van Trine said, although the territory of several of the present officials will be altered.

C. A. Bixler, the present representative of the Bell company here, will be in charge of the territory served by the Gettysburg, New Oxford, Fairfield, Biglerville and York Springs exchanges. Harry Hart, Hanover, at present manager of the East Berlin exchange will be under the jurisdiction of the York county manager, it was stated.

Mr. Hart and Edward Trimmer, the latter of Gettysburg, attended the conference in Chambersburg Monday.

MONOPLANE IS FORCED DOWN

Four Passengers Take Bus From Here After Plane Lands.

A large cabin monoplane of the Pittsburgh Airways en route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh made a forced landing in a wheat stubble field at the Adams county home about 12:30 o'clock, Monday afternoon, after the controls jammed and the pilots were unable to make a lateral turn.

The controls had been repaired in Philadelphia before the takeoff, but apparently the job was not completed before the plane set out on the westward journey.

The pilots, Bob Drake and Sam Bigamy, made the landing without difficulty, and after the controls were repaired, the ship took off again and landed at the airport where it spent the night, taking off again this morning.

The plane, a Travelair cabin monoplane, with accommodations for four passengers and two pilots, makes regular east and west trips daily over Gettysburg.

The plane was carrying four passengers at the time. After the forced landing they were placed on a bus and sent to Harrisburg where they took a train for the remainder of the journey to Pittsburgh.

Car Careens Into Gasoline Pump

Driver, After Collision, Switches Off Lights Of Auto And Speeds Away.

Traveling at high speed, a car turned into Liberty street at midnight and knocked down an electric gasoline pump at the Plank and Bell garage, causing damage estimated at $184. After the car struck the pump, the driver turned out the lights and kept going.

The car turned into Liberty from either York or Hanover street. Before striking the pump, the car hit the curb at the corner of Hanover and Liberty streets, and then careened across the street and knocked down the pump.

According to reports, a woman, residing in the vicinity took the license number of the car.

Lake "Rescue" Proves Joke

"Man" Dangles From Airplane And Drops; Boats Quickly Leave Shore; Hoax Discovered.

An effigy of J. Donald Swope, Gettysburg lawyer, dropped into Laurel Dam from an airplane at an altitude of 1,000 feet, last Saturday, caused considerable excitement at that summer resort before the "joker" was discovered.

The appearance of the airplane over the Laurel colony was sufficient to arouse more than passing interest among the cottagers, and many necks were craned to see the aerial visitor.

Interest was further heightened when several persons saw the form of a man dangling from the undercarriage of the plane. A moment or two later spectators around the lake were horrified to see the "man" falling and saw "him" hit the water with a resounding splash.

Boats and canoes immediately put out from shore to effect a "rescue," but the joke was turned on the "rescuers" when they found the "man" to be only a stuffed dummy. A note was attached to the effigy stating that it represented "Attorney Swope taking a high dive as a golfer."

The "joker" was then discovered. Attorney Swope and D. J. Forney, Gettysburg garage proprietor, are friends and ardent golfers, but recently Mr. Forney has been turning the tables on the former on the links and he staged the diving stunt to taunt the attorney.

Mr. Forney was a passenger in the plane, piloted by Paul D. Charles, of the Gettysburg airport. Attorney Swope was on the bank at Laurel and watched the "rescue."

Local Residents To Attend Wedding

The ceremony will be performed in Bethany Lutheran church, the Rev. Harry L. Saul officiating.

Former Gettysburg Man Destroyed 13 Billions

Edmund E. Schreiner, who was born here in 1847 and raised in Gettysburg, retired today from 67 years of active service for the United States government as an official of the treasury department in Washington. He and Captain Calvin Gilbert, Springs avenue, have been life-long friends, the former Gettysburg man visiting Captain Gilbert here last summer.

For the last nine years two Pennsylvanians have supervised the production and destruction of all money issued from or returned to the United States treasury.

Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, has been on the production end and probably will continue to sign newly issued currency for some time to come.

Edmund E. Schreiner has managed the destruction of more than

Johns Well Runs Low; Water Company Facing New Water Crisis Here

Pump Sucks Air At 9 O'clock Monday Night And Then Is Shut Down While Officials Investigate; Find Well Going Dry, As Creek Gets Lower.

C. B. DOUGHERTY OFFERS TOWN WATER FROM WELL AT ICE PLANT

Gettysburg's water supply situation was rapidly approaching a crisis again today.

The three wells which have augmented the town's water supply since last week when Marsh creek gave evidence of drying up entirely today were reported to be dropping rapidly, and officials of the Gettysburg Water company would not hazard a guess as to how long they would hold out.

Meanwhile, Marsh creek was falling steadily, giving the pumping station little opportunity to operate.

The reservoir was only half full, Monday evening, after the usual heavy Monday drain upon the reserve there caused the level to drop lower than any time in recent weeks.

The William Johns well, always believed to be a never-failing source of water even in previous dry spells, showed signs of exhaustion about 9 o'clock, Monday evening, giving water company officials something else to worry about.

DOG GUARDS OWNER'S BODY

Grows At Officials As They Make Inquiry Into Sudden Death.

A white poodle dog, 12 years old, stood guard over the body of Mrs. Emma J. Colehouse, 47 year old Hanover woman, when she died at a camp along the Big Conewago, two miles southwest of East Berlin in York county, early Monday.

The dog, standing with its paws on the woman's body, growled at Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, when he came to give the woman assistance; at Dr. L. U. Zech, York county coroner, and at the undertaker when he arrived to remove the body.

Mrs. Colehouse had gone to the spot where she died Saturday afternoon with Bernard F. Krauski, 41 years old, and pitched camp along the creek.

During Sunday night she became ill and a doctor was summoned. The coroner, after an investigation, declared she died from a heart attack superinduced by acute indigestion.

Former Biglerville Girl Dies Near N. Y.

Mrs. Jay W. Bringham, 32, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Deatrick, Biglerville, died in a hospital at Freeport, Long Island, at midnight Monday, it was learned here today. Death followed several operations.

Mr. Deatrick left several days ago to be at the bedside of his daughter, who is the wife of a former resident of Gettysburg. Her husband is a teacher in the Freeport schools.

The body is to be taken to Biglerville for burial.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Heller

Funeral services were held for Mrs. Mary Catherine Heller, wife of Ambrose Heller, Gardners, from the home this morning at 10 o'clock with further services at the Idaville Evangelical church, the Rev. W. K. Hosterman officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Luther Delp, Emory Delp, Warren Group, Ira Davis, John Wolfe and Edward Group.

Pumped Air

George Mertz, second engineer at the pumping station, on night duty at the Johns well, received the first inkling that that well was running out shortly before 9 o'clock Monday evening, when the large pump began to sputter and pump air.

He immediately stopped the pump and came to the water company office to report. Water company officials accompanied Mr. Mertz back to the well and the pump was again started at its regular speed of 125 gallons a minute. Ten minutes later the pump again began sucking air, and the speed was reduced.

The pump's capacity was cut to between 25 and 30 gallons a minute, and it continued to operate at that speed throughout the night. Today the pump's speed was increased to about 70 gallons per minute, but water company officials said they expected to reduce that to 50 gallons per minute later in the day.

Other Wells Fall

The two pumps at the reservoir also show signs of failing, water company officials aid, and their speeds have been reduced. The one well has been cut from 55 to 38 gallons a minute and the other well has been reduced from 32 to 20 gallons per minute.

The pumps at the pumping station were able to run a short time Monday evening and again today, and with the three furniture factories using no thorough water at all today, the level of the reservoir was raised considerably, although that reserve basin was far from full.

When the water company's plight became known today, C. B. Dougherty, manager of Gettysburg ice and storage company, offered use of the large volume of water now going to waste at the ice plant. This water, which comes from a deep artesian well at the ice plant, has been tested and found safe for drinking. It is now being used to cool pipes in the ice-making plant and is slightly tepid.

Water company officials accepted Mr. Dougherty's offer and this morning two large tanks were set up at the ice plant to catch the water. At the same time, local representatives of the Western Maryland railroad offered the water company the use of a pump which is now being used to pump this waste water into a large tank in the railroad yards for use on locomotives.

By mid-afternoon it was expected the pump would be in position to pump the water into the water company's main. When water became scarce here, the railroad built a small dam over the Tiber to retain some of the ice company's surplus, and the pump was installed to (Continued on Second Page)

Runs Truck Into Path Of Train Here

Driver Mistakes Watchman For Man Seeking Lift And Gets In Collision.

I. W. Zeek, Chambersburg, refuses to pick up hitch-hikers, but he probably will stop the next time one waves at him.

Driving a truck west on Buford avenue, this morning, Zeek refused to stop when he saw a man standing on the highway waving his hands and endeavoring to stop him.

As Zeek's truck reached the Reading railroad tracks where they cross Buford avenue, the big machine was struck by the tender of an engine using the Y to turn around.

Reading company officials said that James Tate was guarding the crossing and tried to stop Zeek's truck before it reached the tracks.

The truck was damaged to the extent of about $100 in the crash. The engine stopped almost immediately after the crash.

Hermit Leaves Big Sum To State Home

Los Angeles, Aug. 12 (AP).—William Snodgrass, 73-year-old hermit, found dead in bed in a cheap hotel Sunday, left $200,000 in a bank vault and willed the income from it to the Masonic Home, Elizabethtown, and the Pennsylvania Hospital for Sick and Injured, Philadelphia.

The public administrator in charge of the case has found no relatives. Snodgrass lived in a locked room, emerging only for 15-cent meals at cheap restaurants. Taken to a hospital ill, he asked the costs, dressed, climbed out a window, and fled to a hotel where he told the manager not to pay "five or ten dollars to any doctor." He was ill at the hotel a week before his death. A maid carried his meals to him.

Farmer Found Dead; Attacked Month Ago

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 12 (AP).—Apparently murdered, Clifton Borneman, young farmer who a month ago reported he had been attacked, robbed and left unconscious for thirty hours while preparing for a belated honeymoon, was the center of another inquiry Monday. Borneman's body was found Monday on the farm of Henry Hirsch, an uncle, with whom he and his bride had been living, a shotgun charge in his breast. The shotgun was found thirty-five feet away with both barrels fired.

Coroner Anderson said he could not accept a theory of suicide. After the first attack, friends of Borneman accused county authorities with apathy. Officers said at the time that Borneman's marriage to Jane Tall, of Baltimore, had been opposed by her parents.

Norris Primary Fight Is Test For Hoover

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 12 (AP).—"For Hoover or not for Hoover" was the cry which reverberated across the plains of Nebraska Monday night as the state's most bitterly fought senatorial primary campaign came to a close.

Political observers saw in today's primary a test of the Hoover administration strength in the farm belt and predicted a record vote.

George W. Norris, senior Nebraska senator and veteran campaigner, seeking the Republican nomination, stumped the state denouncing the tariff, assailing what he termed the "power trust" and criticizing administration farm relief measures.

His opponent, W. M. Stebbins, pleaded with equal vigor for a return to a "two-party system," attacked Norris for failure to cooperate with the Hoover administration and pledged himself to party regularity.

JOHNS WELL

lift the water into the railroad's water tank.

Before the ice company plant's water is pumped into the mains it will be treated with chlorine, and will be absolutely safe for drinking, officials of the state department of health said.

Without Charge

Mr. Dougherty is giving this water to the water company without charge. After this hookup is made, the railroad will again receive its water from the town's system, but the amount taken for the railroad will be negligible in comparison with the total amount used by local residents.

In order to bolster the town's water supply, the water company is pressing toward the re-opening of two large wells on government land between 1,000 and 1,500 feet from the Johns well. These shafts will be cleaned out and the flow measured. If these wells give indications of producing water steadily pumps will be attached and the supply pumped into the mains. Both wells are described as "never failing," but during the present drought even the best wells in Adams county are showing unmistakable signs of the protracted dry weather.

Well drillers advised the water company against adding to the 185 feet of pipe in the Johns well. They pointed out that when that well was tapped water stood at 60 feet below the surface, and if the underground supply was not sufficient to keep the water at that level it certainly would not be sufficient to keep it at any lower level. The Johns well is about 336 feet deep.

If one of the wells on government land, which have been offered to the water company free of charge by Col. E. E. Davis, superintendent of the national park, gives indications of furnishing a steadier supply than the Johns well, the pump at the latter shaft will be removed, water company officials said.

Factories Close

The three furniture factories began work as usual this morning, but were immediately notified by water company officials to shut down all departments which required Gettysburg water to operate, and all but a few departments stopped work at 8:30 o'clock.

Furniture factory workmen and water company employees then went Marsh Creek to open dams and channels so that every drop of water in that stream might run to the pumping station so that the pumps there could operate a short time each day.

Just how long Gettysburg will have water for drinking purposes water company officials were unable to say today. They declared that the situation today was more serious than any time in the present emergency, and again called on local residents to consume only a minimum of water until Marsh Creek and the wells are replenished by substantial rains.

Of sixty-five wells in Gettysburg and vicinity tested by the state department of health recently, only eight have been found safe for drinking purposes. They are the wells at the Gettysburg ice and storage company, the Victor products corporation, the Evergreen cemetery, the Lutheran theological seminary, two at Gettysburg college, Dunmore Inn, along the Fairfield road, and the William Bushman spring along the Baltimore "pike."

CANCELS VACATION

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP).—President Hoover today cancelled his proposed western trip. In announcing cancellation of the Rocky mountain trout trip, in view of the drought situation, he would be of more use in Washington.

Chicago Newspapers Agree To End Quarrel Over Lingle

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Gangster activities and the newspaper war, both of which have been passing through a period of quiet over the last two weeks, flared into action again Monday.

The police got busy following published reports that Scarface Al Capone had added the North Side to his liquor concessions. This move is said to have followed the flight from town of George (Bugs) Moran, whose followers have been practically wiped out either by gunfire or terrorism since Scarface came out of a Philadelphia prison four months ago.

Peace Move Sanctioned

The newspaper war, which started among the city's dailies following the murder of Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter and alleged gangland fixer, got a new span of life when the Tribune sanctioned a peace meeting of the six dailies on condition that all proposals be unanimous.

The battle started when rivals of the Tribune loosed a daily barrage

CALL MAYOR IN INQUIRY

Witnesses Asked To Tell What They Know Of Ewald Loan.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Mayor Walker, George Olvany, former head of Tammany Hall, and Emerich Boczer, once secretary to former City Magistrate Ewald, were subpoenaed Monday to appear before a county grand jury and tell what they knew, if anything, concerning allegations that Ewald paid $12,000 for his appointment.

Boczer, a lifelong friend of Ewald, was named Monday by United States Attorney Tuttle as the "mysterious witness" who told a federal grand jury that Ewald told him he paid $12,000 for his job.

The mayor and Judge Olvany are to be asked to tell of the circumstances of Ewald's appointment, who recommended him and what arguments were put forward in his behalf.

It already has been established by Mr. Tuttle that Mrs. Ewald lent Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk to Sheriff Farley, $10,000, which he in turn gave to Martin Healy, Tammany leader of the Nineteenth district and suspended deputy commissioner of plant and structures.

Healy, suspended by the mayor when he refused to testify regarding the loan before a federal grand jury, had a long talk with District Attorney Crain in which he admitted receiving $10,000 from Tommaney, but denied it was in payment for his support of Ewald for the magistrate's bench.

Queen and King Reported to Be Near Reconciliation

Vienna, Aug. 12 (AP).—Reconciliation between King Carol and Queen Helen of Rumania was reported to be only a matter of hours in messages received here Monday from the royal summer palace at Sinaia, where the king is staying.

The messages said the queen now had been persuaded of the correctness of the king's view that their divorce had never been legal.

Coronation Expected

If the reports are accurate, nothing appears to stand in the way of coronation of the royal couple in September or October. King Carol is said to be very eager to hold the coronation this fall.

Public announcement of a reconciliation between the couple has long been awaited and frequently rumored, but never yet materialized.

In well-informed quarters in Vienna doubts were expressed Monday that the reconciliation had been completely achieved. It was felt it could scarcely have been reached with such apparent ease.

Premier Maniu recently stayed three days in Sinaia without being received by the king. During that time the Rumanian minister to London, M. Titulescu, alone was in attendance on his majesty.

Threatened To Resign
Premier Maniu was said to have threatened to resign if King Carol carried out his reported intention of being crowned alone this fall, while M. Titulescu apparently encouraged the king in this desire.

Both statesmen, however, dined Sunday with the king, and from this meeting arose reports that Premier Maniu was reported to draft the program of the coronation ceremony and its attendant festivities.

Robert was placed in the baggage car of the westbound train which was met at the Passaic station at 5:59 p. m. by a police ambulance. The boy was taken to St. Mary's hospital here where he was pronounced dead by Dr. I. Weinstein.

HOOVER HEARS DROUGHT DATA

Callers On President Tell Of Damage Caused By Dry Weather.

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP).—The seriousness of the drought situation in certain areas was emphasized to President Hoover Monday by a long line of callers, including Chairman Payne, of the American Red Cross, while the department of agriculture reported crop prospects had declined almost 7 per cent in July as a result of the protracted dry weather.

Meanwhile, the government proceeded with plans to relieve farmers in distress and to insure against possible spread of disease.

Railroad executives continued to offer aid through reduced freight rates, and Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, called at the White House to determine the president's plans.

Secretary Hyde conferred with Mr. Hoover late in the day and went over details for the conference of governors of twelve states here Thursday. Replies of acceptance from all twelve governors to the president's invitation were on hand, that of Governor Weaver, of Nebraska, being the last to arrive. Governor Weaver had said he might not come, but informed the president he would be present.

Boys Trapped by Trains on Bridge; One Drops and Dies, Other Lives

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 12.—Trapped on the Hackensack river trestle of the Erie railroad near here, by two trains, Robert Brelle, 13, of Jersey City, leaped to his death Monday night while his 10-year-old brother, Arthur, hung from the ties while the trains thundered overhead.

The brothers walked from their home in Jersey City to Passaic and found themselves in the middle of the trestle with the two trains approaching from opposite directions.

Terror-stricken, Robert leaped. His body struck the concrete base of a bridge support and slid into the river.

Pulled to Safety

Arthur, the younger, lowered himself through an opening in the Robert Feldman, 23 years old, of North Third street, charged with assault and battery on Vera Winters, 7 years old, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Winters, of 56 South Third street, entered a plea of guilty. On report of Chief Byers that other matters relating to Feldman are under investigation, sentence was deferred.

HANOVER DRIVER IS RELEASED IN DEATH

Hanover—Lloyd R. Rhone, this place, was exonerated of all blame in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary Hahn, 6 York street, who died from injuries received in an automobile crash near Shepherdstown, in a verdict returned by a Dauphin county coroner's jury at Harrisburg, and later in the day was relieved of a manslaughter charge which had been brought by Cumberland county authorities as a result of the same crash.

EXPECT TO FINISH NEW ROAD BY SEP. 1

Waynesboro—A section of the new Waynesboro-Five Forks road, it is expected, will be opened to the public about September first. This section will be from North Grant street north two miles to a point near Nicodemus station.

Final work is being made on this two mile stretch such as cleaning up and grading. When this is completed the work will be submitted to the state highway department for its approval. When the stretch is approved the highway department will set about putting on the finishing touches.

THIEVES RANSACK HOME NEAR YORK

York—The home of Sherman Ruth, located on the Lincoln highway, west of York, was entered and ransacked Sunday evening between the hours of 5 and 8:30 o'clock, by thieves. The Ruth family were away for several hours and when they returned they found their home had been entered. The robbery was reported to the state police and Sergeant A. F. Dahlstrom conducted an investigation. He found that a lock on the rear door had been picked. Evidence indicates that the robbers left by a window on the west side of the house. Three silver spoons were the only things missing.

FOREST FIRE SWEEPS THRU MARYLAND WOODS

Hagerstown—The forest fire that has been raging for two days north of Clearspring Sunday night had burned to within 100 yards of the home of Harry Mills and was still spreading rapidly, driven by a raging wind.

Water was being hauled from a spring not far away in a barrel on a truck to the house and was there being sprinkled from time to time upon the roof to keep the shingles from being ignited by the flying embers. So hot were the flames that the water was evaporated almost as soon as it was applied, and the men were kept constantly busy using this method of prevention. Meanwhile, other fighters stood about the outside of the house battling the conflagration from the door.

MAN THROWN FROM CAR DIES OF SKULL FRACTURES

Frederick—Hurled from his speeding automobile against the side of a 15-foot ravine, Sherman R. Koogle, 66, former hotelkeeper, of Middletown, was fatally injured Saturday near Braddock Heights. He died of a crushed skull and chest in the Frederick City hospital an hour after the accident.

Koogle was on his way from Frederick to his home when the crash occurred. As the Ford roadster in which he was traveling attempted to round a curve near the home of W. S. Bennett, one-fourth mile east of Braddock Heights, it left the macadam highway, ran for one hundred and twenty-five feet past the front of Bennett's garage, and, missing a concrete culvert to the left, plunged into the ravine. The car, its speed apparently hardly checked, sideswiped an obstruction, and struck the opposite side of the ditch sideways, throwing Koogle against the bank.

Screen Stars Turn To Broadway Stage

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Mary Pickford, Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque, motion picture stars, will appear in Broadway stage plays this fall, an announcement by Arch Selwyn, theatrical producer, Monday said.

Miss Banky and Mr. La Rocque, her husband, will be co-starred in a play being adapted from the Hungarian by John Emerson and Anita Loos. Miss Banky is now in Paris conferring with Miss Loos.

It has not been decided in what play Miss Pickford will appear, but it is considered possible she will be starred with another film actor with whom Mr. Selwyn is negotiating.

DAGGER

By Mary Dahlberg

SYNOPSIS: Dagger Marley, a spirited young Texas girl, is broken hearted at news of the death of Blaine Howard, whom she once had rescued from some Mexican insurgents, on the Western Front in France, for she had fallen in love with him. She meets an American ace, Captain John Vanering, however, and marries him just before he returns to the front, where he is wounded. After the Armistice the captain returns, broken by heavy drinking, and then is killed in an airplane crash. Dagger visits Dick Wellman, an old friend of ranch days and now an English lord, in Paris. He is married to Blaine Howard's widow, Emily. Dagger, meanwhile, realizes she cherishes the memory of Howard more than that of her dead husband, Captain Vanering. She meets the Duc de Pontoise, a Frenchman who knew both Howard and Vanering. The Duc, in turn, finds himself falling in love, and his aunt, the Princess Rakovsky, introduces Dagger to Parisian society.

Chapter 25

THE DUC PROPOSES BY PROXY

"My dear, you have a male relative?" asked the Princess.

"Surely, my uncle," Dagger replied.

"And where is this uncle?"

"In Texas. I've told you about him."

"Ah, yes. But Texas is half a world away. Is there no one nearer?"

"No. No one your blood?"

"Why? I don't need a relative, do I? Is it disrespectful for a woman to be without one in France?"

The Princess laughed.

"Not at all. But do you not appreciate the situation, child?"

Dagger was more puzzled than ever.

"What situation?" she asked.

De Senac's Tante shrugged her shoulders resignedly.

"But you are not a jeune fille! You cannot suppose my Raoul has been impervious to your charms?"

Dagger blushed.

"I know he likes me. And I like him."

"Ah, likes!" There was significance in the emphasis upon the repetition. "And likes?"

"Of course, I do." Dagger attempted a note of amused indignation. It didn't quite come off.

"He—he's been very kind to me."

"More than kind." The Princess's light, old eyes dwelt almost fondly upon the flushed face beside her.

"You know, my child—or, seemingly, you do not know—that this conversation is quite irregular. Things are not managed so in our country, in our class. But Raoul had talked over with me the situation—"

"What situation?" Dagger interrupted, dazedly.

"Between you and him," returned the Princess a trifle impatiently.

"A man and a woman cannot see one another continually without developing a situation. That is patent. And between you and Raoul the situation has reached a climax. He wishes to ask for your hand, but first he desired me to discover if you had a relative at hand to whom he might address his desire for permission to make his suit."

Dagger was caught up by two opposing temptations; to laugh and to cry.

"But I don't love Raoul," she exclaimed.

"Tut, what is love?" retorted the Princess. "Any woman could love my Raoul."

"But I don't," insisted Dagger.

"I admire him, I like him, I respect him—oh, tremendously. But I don't love him."

The Princess Rakovsky brushed this objection aside.

"Again, I ask you what is love? How many women love the men they marry—when they marry? Do you suppose love is essential to marriage? A modern convention, my dear, possibly fitting your American society, but scarcely in accordance with ours."

"I couldn't marry a man I didn't love."

"How do you know that you would not come to love him?" the Princess asked quietly. "I knew very little of Rakovsky when we married, but in the course of our life together I came to cherish a genuine affection for him."

"Affection," Dagger cried scornfully. "I don't want affection. I want love, but no man's love could mean anything to me, now. I am through with men—as lovers."

"So you have loved?" the Princess challenged curiously.

"Yes," Dagger raised candid eyes to hers. "I have loved, and I am finished with love."

The older woman nodded, as if to herself.

"Ah, I thought there was an experience behind that poise of yours, my child. But let us not be too serious about it. I say to you only this. My Raoul loves you. He wishes to address you—"

"Well, why doesn't he?" Dagger demanded petulantly. "I should think he's man enough to take a no from me directly instead of at second hand."

The Princess smiled tolerantly.

"You are not familiar with our French customs. It is not au fait for a man to address directly the woman of his choice. First, he must approach her nearest male relative, and announce his intentions. Next, there are various incidental matters to be settled. One must know all about one's wife, her background, her family, her fortune."

"I should think love might do away in the process," scoffed Dagger.

"On the contrary," the Princess rejoined tranquilly. "True love can be based most satisfactorily upon an equality of interests and values."

"In America it is based upon itself. That is sufficient."

"But we are in France," the Princess reminded her. "In America, I daresay, matters are different. There, for instance, you do not have the responsibility of a name such as Raoul bears."

"I am proud of my name, Princess. It stands for something."

"Excellent, my dear. It is good to have family pride. But a name such as Raoul's—"

"Does Raoul presume to believe that I would admit his name to be better or more honorable than mine?" Dagger demanded, warmly.

The Princess laughed.

"Saint Vierge, what a spitfire! But you are right, my child. I honor you for it—and so will Raoul. Tut, why should we speak of background and family to you? You are of us, wherever you come from, whoever you may be. It is plain. Our friends have seen it. As for fortune, that is of no concern to Raoul. He said frankly he should ask nothing. If this is to be a marriage of love—"

"But there is to be no marriage," protested Dagger. "And please, believe me when I say that I am not in love."

The Princess shrugged her shoulders again.

"We talk at cross-purposes," she said. "Love is not, precisely, the topic of our discourse. I have in mind simply to advise you of Raoul's desire to ask for your hand."

Dagger was silent for several minutes, her mind almost numb.

"You mustn't let him," she said at last.

"Why not?"

"Because—Well, because I don't—"

"But my dear, we have discussed that aspect of the situation," the Princess interjected firmly. "It is early to speak of love before the betrothal. You would at least begin with respect and mutual esteem, which is more than falls to the lot of most couples."

Dagger shook her head.

"I have no intention of marrying," she answered. "And if I had, it would have to be on a basis broader than that. I couldn't live with a man if I didn't love him with all my strength."

"Ah, to be sure." The Princess nodded wisely. "That is well-said. That is how marriage should be. And in the meantime, may we take it that you have no objection to Raoul's waiting upon you?"

"I suppose so," she assented. "It won't be any use—"

"Let us wait and see," advised his Tante. "I have known women before who were hot for rejection in the preliminary discussions, and afterwards urged on the betrothal."

Dagger opened her mouth to reply, and then decided not to. Their points of view were entirely too alien.

"I'll be glad to see him," she answered after another interval of consideration. "I only hope I shan't hurt him."

The Princess Rakovsky patted her hand with a rare manifestation of affection.

"It would make me happy, my dear, if you could come to an arrangement with Raoul. He should marry, and who would be more charming as Duchesse de Pontoise than you?"

Dagger murmured an acknowledgment of the compliment, wishing her heart wouldn't beat so rapidly. There was much in what the Princess had said. If it wasn't for the memory of Howard.

But the dead man overshadowed her heart as if he had been a living presence.

HOOVER CALLS GOVERNORS TO DROUGHT PARLEY

HEALTH TALK

"A recent article in one of the magazines developed an interesting comparison between the life and habits of the 'gay nineties' and the present period. One of the statements indicated the very obvious fact that in the good old days rest and stability were prominent factors in life while restlessness appears to be today's dominating force. The latter has both its advantages and disadvantages," said Doctor Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, today.

"The advantages may be seen in the marked advances made in the science of living and the production methods which have in great measure been responsible for the nation's march of progress. But a price is demanded for this sort of thing. And it shows itself in the nerve-straining habits which today seem to control all of us.

"We rush in our work, we rush in our play, and we rush hither and thither merely for the sake of rushing. Moreover, we possess restless spirits which must be narcotized by mechanical thrills. And in all this activity the gentle art of relaxing seems utterly to have been lost.

"Apparently forgetting that our intelligence is housed in a body, the basic demands of which differ little from those of the so-called dumb animals, we keep driving on and on, rather than emulate them by slackening our speed and resting overtaxed nerves and muscles.

"Fatigue is a still small voice which too frequently is silenced by business, social and recreational demands. Yet this same command is imperiously obeyed by the lower animals—much to their advantage. "Driving on and on until something snaps seems to be the proper thing today, withal a most senseless one. On the other hand, applying the daily habit of physical and mental relaxation and substituting it for some of the present-day nerve-racking excesses is one of the best manifestations of common sense.

"Do not be driven too hard by today's allurements and thus become a slave. Rather, drive carefully, sanely and healthily, and be the master. To do this, one must learn to relax. And relaxation means longer, healthier and happier life."

The Sioux: The members of the Sioux Fishing Club of Gettysburg arrived on the Mail train last Monday afternoon, under the leadership of Capt. C. H. Ruff, and are now very comfortably encamped at Mitchell's locust grove about a mile above town. Daily some of the members have been in town, laying in a stock of provisions, and calling on friends and acquaintances. They belong to some of the best families of Gettysburg, and are gentlemen in every sense of the word. When one of their number disobeys the rules, he is severely punished, and none are allowed to remain out of camp at night, unless in case of dire necessity.
Their first night in camp was unpleasant, as well as the two days—Tuesday and Wednesday—following, which were made dreary from a heavy rain that prevailed during the entire time, but on Thursday the clouds passed away and the clear blue sky soon made them happy. They are welcomed to town by everybody with whom they have come in contact, and indeed have made glad some of our merchants from whom they have made purchases.—Newport News, Aug. 7.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

STAMPS

WHAT boy has not, at some time or other, thrilled over the "stamp collecting fever?" To me it seems a fine hobby. I know by experience, for as a boy, I hunted garrets and lofts, and searched out stamps from near and far.
Recently I had the pleasure of looking over the stamp collection of a friend in the middle West who later sold that collection for $100,000!
But, outside the thrill of discovery in this hobby, there lies within it a very valuable educational side. You learn about countries you may never have heard about before. You get an idea of their peoples and their rulers. You also frequently get snatches of their interesting history.
In 1897, the "Cabo series" of Newfoundland stamps appeared. They illustrated, in a beautiful manner, the work of that section of North America. There were pictures showing caribou hunting, mining, salmon fishing, logging, and deep sea fishing.
Other countries have given graphic pictures of their industries. The United States has issued most fascinating series from time to time giving a regular story on these little messengers of the mail. Various periods of its history have been beautifully engraved upon these small surfaces.
I should like to see stamps issued that concern particular cities. For instance, a stamp with some interesting event, or illustrating some special industry that New York, Vancouver, London, Chicago, New Orleans or Detroit might be noted for, would be very interesting to all who received letters from those centres. In time the educational value of such stamps would prove most valuable.
I would like to see letters tell more than their contents. I would like to have their sponsoring little stamps also bearing a message of interest and instruction, beyond those which are already most informing. And I would like to see the heads of noted men in America on stamps—while yet they live! A President has to die before he is thus honored but most other nations place the picture of their rulers on their stamps while they have them with them.
I never receive a letter with a strange stamp on it without studying it closely. Do you? If you do not, you have missed much.

MEMORIES

The little place of rest and play
Grows dearer to us, day by day.
As first the tender leaf and shoot,
Then early bud, and flower and fruit
So memory blossoms from the tears
And smiles of all the by-gone years.

From what has been and passed
Comes all that long with us can stay.
Not in itself the place is fair
But by the friends who gather there.
What value has this ocean shell?
Once lived a child who loved it well.

These walls once heard her laughter
sweet;
These floors, the patter of her feet.
The garden knew her; all we keep
Has seen us smile and seen us weep.
By every care and joy we've known
This little place has dearer grown.

Not hastily are memories made.
The charms they cling to first must fade;
Trinkets at which we scarcely glanced,
As keepsakes, find their worth enhanced.
Thus with the beauty Time bestows
The little home place lovelier grows.

Little Jack Rabbit

THE POPCORN PARTY

Danny Fox couldn't forget how he and Hungry Hawk had been fooled by Little Jack Rabbit. The more he thought about it, the more angry he became. To think that a little bunny had got the better of them! Well, well, well! It certainly was enough to make any fox mad.
"I'll get him yet," murmured Danny.

ny Fox. "I'll catch him if it takes me a year and a day."

And the old fox meant what he said, for he was still having a hard time of it because the farmer kept close watch and locked the hen-house door each night. Nor had Danny Fox forgotten the steel trap. He was afraid to venture into the farmyard—there might be another trap hidden somewhere.

One day he had a bright idea. In the Shady Forest there stood a little cabin. It had a nice door and three windows, a chimney of red brick, and a big fireplace. It was empty—nobody had lived in it for some time. Danny Fox would play host and give a pop-corn party. "Ha, ha!" chuckled the old fox at the idea. "And I'll be sure to invite the little rabbit."

That very evening he sent out invitations to all the little people of the Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow. Yes, sir, every single person in fur and feather received an invitation to the popcorn party.

At first the little rabbit, as he looked over his invitation card, decided not to go, but when he found that everyone was invited, he persuaded himself that perhaps Danny Fox was trying to be friendly. At the same time he made up his mind, like a wise little bunny, to keep both eyes wide open, for there's no telling what a fox will do. No, indeed!

At last the day for the party arrived, and soon the little old log cabin was filled to overflowing. After the corn was popped, everybody sat around and had a fine feast. But, Oh dear me! All of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind blows off your hat, Danny Fox made a jump for the little rabbit. And, Oh dear me! again, what a commotion there was. Out of the windows and through the open door went the Shady Forest folk—all but the poor little rabbit. He jumped up the chimney, and none too soon, and almost a minute too late, as the wicked fox landed on the very spot where he had been sitting.

"Now I've got you," snarled the wicked old furry robber, squatting down beside the hearthstone. He gave little heed to the ashes that clung to his beautiful bushy tail. Nor did he seem to mind the stones that were still warm, although the fire had long since burned out.

"Now I've got you, little rabbit. You can't slip away. You have fooled me once too often. Now you'll have to pay."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Rubberneck Guides Tell Tourists Where Arnold Rothstein Was Shot.

By Richard Massock

New York—Murder sites, morbid curiosity being what it is, are hot stuff for the rubberneck guides. A season ago the megaphone artists of the sightseeing buses were pointing out, if not the site of the Albert Snyder bludgeoning, at least the restaurant where Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder began the flirtation that carried them to the electric chair.

This year they have added to their itinerary of places once marked in the newspaper diagrams with the familiar crosses of tragedy the hotel from which Arnold Rothstein staggered with a mortal bullet in his side.

Mystery Lingers
Mystery is the element that keeps the memory of a murder alive in the public mind.

Curiosity feeds on conjectures as to just what happened behind a certain innocent facade. Yet, even so, there comes a time when a house of murder either is forgotten, or disappears.

What, then, are some of the sites of famous murders like now? The shades are drawn over the windows of the top floor apartment in a five-story building on West Fifty-seventh street, where Dorothy King, the Broadway butterfly, was found, the odor of chloroform still faint between her cold lips on a morning of 1923.

A sign outside advertises "apartments for rent." Maybe the mystery apartment is one of them. Then there is the address where another Broadway beauty, Louise Lawson, was found suffocated under similar mystifying circumstances just about a year later. It was at 22 West Seventy-second street, now obliterated by a huge apartment house.

A few blocks away, at 244 West Seventieth street, is the former home of Joseph Brown Elwell, whose death is one of the most famous of the world's unsolved crimes.

Whether Elwell, wealthy bridge expert and yachtsman, was shot for love or hate or robbery, probably nobody knows but the man or woman who performed the deed in 1920 and left no clue. A dingy rooming house now, it too advertises "vacancies."

FRIENDLY MOUNTAINS
By Mary Graham Bonner

Once more the Little Black Clock took Peggy and John to meet his old friend Geology who knew so much about the earth.

He liked to be called G. for short. He said it sounded less important and not so stiff.

"I have so much I want to tell you and show you," he said. "But of course I'm like every one. Each person thinks what he is doing is very important."

"But, my dears, you know we're always having changes. Even now new continents are being formed—but it takes so many years."

Geology wore a costume of rock and stone and looked something like a picture the children had seen of hood, at 257 West End avenue, is an even older building of one-time interest. It was the honeymoon house of Roland Molineux and his bride, Blanche Chesebrough (the Gibson girl), whose names are in the anthologies of major crimes.

Molineux found himself a police suspect after the deaths by poison of Henry C. Barnett, a broker, who had been a rival for Miss Chesebrough's affections, and of a Mrs. Adams.

In the case of Mrs. Adams, she innocently swallowed a fatal draught of supposed headache powder received through the mails by a roomer, Harry Cornish, with whom Molineux had had differences at their club. All of this was early in the present century.

Molineux finally was acquitted after a retrial, following 22 months' imprisonment in Sing Sing. From his experience, Molineux wrote a death house play, "The Man Inside," which was one of the Broadway failures of 1914. A few years later he died in an insane asylum.

The honeymoon house for years was vacant. Only recently, its story forgotten, has it had tenants.

an old-time knight, clad in armor, only a heavier, harder kind of armor.

"New continents?" John repeated. "Yes indeed," G. answered.

"Things are always going on—seas being formed, rocks being worn away, great valleys being made—things are always going on!"

"There are the high mountains now so young and full of pride, and the old ones like the Scottish highlands—quieter, not so ambitious any more, very contented are those mountains."

"Sometimes things happen quickly—when there are volcanoes, earthquakes—"

"I wouldn't want things to happen because of an earthquake," John said earnestly.

"Don't be too scornful of earthquakes. If you happen to be in one just think how adventurous earthquakes are, not willing to be stopped by anything."

"I don't believe I'd be thinking about that if I happened to be around where there was an earthquake."

"But mountains are the friendly ones. Oh yes they are."

The Little Black Clock nodded, though Peggy and John had always thought of mountains as being somewhat grand, and certainly high-up.

"I suffered for more than a year with stomach trouble," said Mr. Armando Leal, 752 near Bedford street, Johnstown. "During all that time I never ate a bit of food that did not cause distress. The abdominal pains often doubled me up in agony. I was so constipated that daily purges were necessary and I finally became terribly nervous. I could not sleep and became so weak I was forced to give up my job at the Bethlehem Steel Plant."

"I tried many medicines and treatments without relief until I began taking Konjola. Konjola helped me from the very beginning. I began to get hungry at meal-time and the food did not cause distress. I began to gain strength, constipation vanished and my nerves became calm for the first time in over a year. I gained twelve pounds in weight and am now strong and ready to return to work. SALESMAN GETS JOB BY CLOTHES

Manufacturer Copies His Style And Rewards With Nice Job.

By Richard Massock

New York—Wealth, the philosophers tell us, will not buy everything.

Some of New York's 50,000 millionaires, therefore, probably are subject to such human feelings as, for instance, envy.

There is, in this connection, the story of a certain capitalist and one of his executives.

Years ago when the capitalist was a young manufacturer in Chicago, laying the foundation for his present fortune, his life was fairly complete except for one thing.

So busy had he been working himself up in the world that he had not had time to develop a taste in clothes.

Born without an inherent sense of what to wear, he was conscious after the establishment of his success of his inability to dress the part. He could not pick the right apparel.

Dress Complex

Perhaps there was a yearning to be known, not as a captain of industry, but as a best-dressed man. Perhaps he would have traded some of his business acumen for a knowledge of how to gratify what obviously was merely vanity.

Anyway, there was in Chicago a man who was his envy and his admiration. This fellow, a salesman, was not especially well-to-do, nor did he have the usual qualities of business success.

He was, as acquaintances recall, a rather hail-fellow-well-met who did know how to clothe himself in the height of fashion.

He wore the garments of the current fashion plates and wore them well, with a grace that was the longing of the manufacturer.

The latter eventually took to copying the clothes of the salesman. When the model appeared in a new suit, his imitator would have his tailor adapt the cut and pattern to his own more solid, less handsome figure.

Then the manufacturer retired from active management and came to New York, or rather was brought here by his wife, who had greater social aspirations for herself and her children. By that time, he had a valet, whom he could trust to select wardrobes befitting his position in the world.

Gratitude

Still he never quite forgot the swell dresser of his Chicago days. It was years later before he met a mutual friend from the old home town. Yet he inquired what had become of the salesman and learned that he had not done so well.

In fact, he was out of a job, although still trying to preserve the dapper appearance of his gayer days.

The manufacturer thereupon telegraphed the ex-salesman an offer of a position as vice-president of one of the corporations he still controlled.

The clothes-model promptly accepted. He probably thought that at last his talents had been recognized.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

TOMATO SOUP OUT OF BOTTLE

Chorus Girl Uses Catsup And Water To Make Well Known Dish.

By Richard Mascock

New York — They call them dumb clucks on Broadway, meaning those gorgeous creatures who ornament the shows like so much animated statuary.

But, people ask, just how dumb are show girls? Is there really as little inside their pretty heads as there's supposed to be?

There are stories of show girls reading Ibsen and Bernard Shaw and Nietzsche, but there is reason to suspect most of them are fiction, started by someone who once saw a chorus girl with a book.

If one gets around to parties he does not have to be told. For the edification of others, here are two incidents that occurred within a recent week.

Meant Well

A chorus girl got married last spring. Her husband, as often happens, was a penniless young fellow in some minor, salaried occupation.

It was one of those love marriages and the girl, although she had to keep on dancing to support herself, was full of good intentions.

One of these was to be a housewife off-stage. Her husband probably discouraged her. Anyway, they had a few friends in for dinner at their own little nest and the girl wanted to show off her domestic capabilities.

She prepared the meal herself. In this she found the corner delicatessen a great help. But when she got around to the soup she found she had forgotten to order a can.

"That's all right," she told her husband. "We'll have tomato soup."

And she emptied a bottle of catsup in a saucepan, mixed a cup of water with it and served it, nice and hot!

The guest who told about it said he's off tomato soup.

Even the rich sometimes bluff, it seems.

At a literary tea a woman who likes to feel that she is a member of the artistic set, but who also is conscious of her wealth, remarked that she might visit Newport for awhile.

TROOPS PATROL MARION, IND., AFTER LYNCHING

Associated Press Photo

A detachment of Indiana National Guard patrolling the streets of Marion, Ind., as the sequel to the lynching of two negroes, who were accused of slaying a white man and attacking his fiancée. State, county and city officials united forces in bringing to justice those who fostered and participated in the dual hanging.

The other story is told by an illustrator whose models are said by connoisseurs to be the loveliest in this town.

One evening he met a girl who had not shown up for work in some time.

"Why haven't you been around?" he demanded.

"Oh, I just forgot," the girl replied nonchalantly.

"Well, then, what have you been doing?" he inquired.

"I got a job in the 'Vanities,'" the girl said.

"If that's so, why aren't you there now?" he asked.

"Oh, I forgot they had matinees," said the girl, yawning.

At the Majestic

Methods and habits of high class crooks provide the animating motif of "Alias French Gertie," Radio Pictures' talk film which will play at the Majestic theatre.

The film adapted from Bayard Veiller's stage play, "The Chatter-box," offers Miss Daniels one of her most versatile roles. In the interpretation of her dramatic and romantic part she converses partly in French and the balance of the time in the voluble, eloquent argot of the underworld.

Jack Sheehan, former Brooklyn infielder, with Atlanta of the Southern association recently went 34 days at second base without an error, handling 216 chances perfectly.

A round by round account is cabled Buenos Ayres when Justo Suarez, Argentina lightweight champion, performs in New York rings.

Bill Terry's 400 batting average this season has verified the judgment of Jewel Ens, Pittsburgh manager, who has contended that the Giants' first baseman is the best hitter in the National league.

Art Shires looked for his outfielder's mit the first time he saw Joe Kuhel, Washington recruit, perform at first base.
